Tutoring Experience

For the past five years, I've guided students through various physics curricula, including IB and A-Level, providing personalized instruction that focuses on understanding core concepts. I've worked with students across different regions, helping them excel in their exams and preparing them for university-level challenges.

My tutoring style focuses on creating a solid understanding of fundamental physics topics, allowing students to approach more complex problems with confidence. In addition to exam preparation, I help students develop skills that are useful beyond school, ensuring they have the necessary tools to thrive in their academic and future professional pursuits.
