Tutoring Experience

I have worked with students from around the world, guiding them through various psychology curricula, including IB and A-Level. My focus has always been on helping students not only understand the material but also excel in their internal assessments and final exams. Whether it's preparing for an IB Psychology IA or writing a university-level research proposal, I ensure my students feel confident and prepared.

In addition to tutoring IB and A-Level students, I have helped many with their AP Psychology exams and extended essays. My experience also extends to supporting learners in preparing for higher education, offering guidance on research methods, writing dissertations, and mastering university-level coursework.
